Stay at the Lodge at Moosehead Lake
When Visiting the International Seaplane Fly-In

Greenville, ME, June 2009 – Whether you are a flying enthusiast or interested in history, you'll enjoy experiencing the Annual International Seaplane Fly-In in Greenville, Maine. The Fly-In was started in 1973 an opportunity to acknowledge bush pilots that for years carried mail, supplies, fishermen, hunters and canoeists into the back woods of Maine. Today, seaplanes are primarily used for scenic rides, survey work and tourist outdoor expeditions.

For a few days in early autumn, thousands of seaplane pilots make an annual pilgrimage to Greenville. Contests, fly-bys, a craft fair, displays, exhibits, speakers, and just socializing make this an enjoyable outing. It is easy to appreciate the design and diversity of the aircraft on exhibit along with the extensive knowledge of the pilots. Spectators can take it all in while exploring the Moosehead Lake region.

When experiencing this unique event, make your base the Lodge at Moosehead Lake. The Lodge overlooks the lake, allowing guests to view seaplanes from the decks or comfort of their room. Shuttles are available from events to the Lodge.
